Once upon a time.
Once upon a time.......

In the magical land of Myst were the sun is always shining and the people are always happy. There lived the most amazing magical creature like fairies, unicorns, mermaids, and so many other beautiful creatures.

Oh and we must not forget the princess. She was the most kind and beautiful woman in all the land. Now the princess was not allowed to leave the castle, by order of the King and Queen.

This made it hard for the princess to make friends and she was lonely. Until one day the princess was exploring the castle and ran into a knight.

Sir Nigel was the most fearless in all the land. Then as if it happened over night the princess and knight became instant friends.

As time passed the princess and the knight became as thick as theives. He would teach her everything he knew about being a knight and she taught him everything she knew about being a princess.
Help the princess sneak out of the castle so that she could go with him on some of his adventures.

Their biggest adventure was when they went out riding their horses to a waterfall that was home to the most majestic mermaids.

They had spent the whole day together at the waterfall just enjoying its beautiful waters; and when the sun went down they raced home with the biggest smiles on their faces.

Just a few day later it was the princess’s birthday which meant that there would be a huge party for the entire kingdom. There was a feast, dancing, drinking, and the biggest cake you ever did see.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY PRINCESS!

As the night came to an end Sir Nigel appeared outside the princess’s bedroom window. He had hoped that the princess would accompany him outside for a surprise. He had created the most beautiful arena for the two of them.
There were lights....

music and flowers everywhere. He then looked at her and asked if the princess would care to dance. She said of course sir Nigel I would love to. As they began to dance she became speechless and filled with joy.

She then looked at him and knew she was in love with her best friend. But, the princess was afraid so she kept her love a secret and simply danced the night away.

As the days grew longer the princess’s feelings began to grow stronger and stronger but she still did nothing about it.

She carried on with her day as if nothing had changed and as time went on Sir Nigel and her grew closer and closer with every waking moment.

It was not to long after the princess’s birthday that a darkness had fallen over the kingdom. Everyone was in panic and no one knew what to do. Then all of the sudden there was a roar coming from the far mountains.

As the days grew longer the princess’s feelings began to grow stronger and stronger but she still did nothing about it.
The King gathered his strongest men to prepare for battle and Sir Nigel was chosen to lead the army. When the princess first heard the news.
About Sir Nigel leaving she tried everything she could to stop him. She could not believe that there was a chance that she could lose him.
Days had gone by.....

And

no one knew anything about the battle. The princess was very anxious and afraid for her friend. So she did the only thing she could. She snuck out of the castle in search of her dearest friend.

She rode for days hoping that he was still alive and unharmed. And when she finally reached the battlefield no one was there and the place was a wreck.

The princess did not know what to do and she quickly became very exhausted from her travels.

So she decided to sleep at the camp hoping that he would return. As dawn broke the princess could hear movement not too far from her. She was afraid and excited all at once in hopes that Sir Nigel had returned.

The next thing she heard was the comforting tone of her dearest friend.
It was Sir Nigel saying hello... The princess was overcome with emotions she did not know what to do except hold him tight and never let him go. Sir Nigel looked at her with such confusion wondering why she had come to such a dangerous place. But, he did not care he was simply happy to see his good friend.

They both spent the day together as if no time had passed. Then Sir Nigel looked upon the princess and told her that tomorrow is his birthday. But of course the princess had already knew this. She had been looking forward to his birthday for a long time. She wanted to make his day as magical as he made hers.

Though they both knew that they did not have much time together because Sir Nigel would soon have to return to battle. Then he looked at her and said...
I love you princess...

And I do not deserve you. You treat me better then anyone I have ever know and you are to good to me. He then asks the princess if someone has ever told her that they love her and the answer is no never.

All Sir Nigel could say was well I do I love you princess. He said it over and over and the princess loved hearing him say it. She was over the moon happy and in the simple moment she knew that Sir Nigel was the one for her.

Based on a true story.
- Hoefler